

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He tells you to sleep well. Friends ask, "what is the cause?" and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

MRS. A. HARTLEY.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your courses, and you grew irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere. You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, nervousness, dizziness, headache, and weakness send the nerves wild with fright, and you cannot sleep. Mrs. Hartley, of 221 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; her case should be a warning to others, and every suffering woman of the untold efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEPARTURE OF MISS MATTINGLY

Clever Young Newspaper Woman Returns to Washington.

Miss Marie Mattingly, a noted young newspaper woman and Washington correspondent, who has been spending several months in Phoenix to avail herself of the recuperative powers of this climate, left over the southern route last night for Tucson en route to Washington. During her stay here she has sent to the Washington Post, the New York World and the Philadelphia Times a number of articles on the peculiar features of Arizona, all of which are calculated to attract the attention of the capitalist, as well as the tourist and curiosity seeker. Her pen refused to be checked, although the young correspondent was here ostensibly for the improvement of her health only. She has been delighted with Phoenix, and has acquired and delighted many friends during her stay. She will spend a week in Tucson gathering material for other articles before her return to Washington, when she will resume her regular duties.

Miss Mattingly is an unusual newspaper woman, with an enviable record for "scope" and rare pieces of journalism. The youngest correspondent who has ever been admitted to the press gallery of congress, she is at the same time, with one exception, the only woman upon whom has been conferred the honor of a seat among the Washington correspondents. A coup of journalism was Miss Mattingly's story of the arrival of Admiral Dewey. Yachts and tug boats sailed and steamed to meet the incoming victor when his flagship, after many days at sea, hove to sight of the city of New York, and Miss Mattingly, representing her syndicate of papers, had the first words with the hero, rushed to her papers a valuable interview, and subsequently sent her pen to work on the first story of Admiral Dewey's candidacy for the presidency. "A great man," was the substance of her early stories of observations and impressions gained by conversation with the admiral, and "pitifully spoiled by his wife," contained the gist of her later accounts, when the American people followed almost to the verge of the belief that the hero of Manila Bay and the independent candidate for president were as much unlike each other almost as Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

Miss Mattingly's press achievements have been many and brilliant, and the more remarkable because the newspaper experience of the young writer extends over no more than three years. She leaves many friends, with whom she promises to renew acquaintance upon her return trip next winter.

A GROWING ORDER

Sons of Night Have Taken Another Spurt.

The latest accession to the agile order, "The Sons of Night," to which most of the colored men who have come to Phoenix within the last three years, have been violently admitted, is George Washington Robinson. Mr. Robinson's name was added to the rolls last night at 10:30 in the vicinity of Phoenix park in the presence of about twenty-five citizens.

Mr. Robinson came to town last Friday and found employment in J. W. Bolton's barber shop on Saturday. The lodge held a meeting that night and his name was proposed for membership. Some objection was made to him on the ground that he did not seem to be built for speed. The Sons of Night are expected to run.

It was argued in Mr. Robinson's behalf that the race is not always to the swiftest. He was voted in and a special meeting was called for last night to initiate him.

The sacred rites have been described so often that there are of no interest to anybody, but the novitiate, and the novitiate in this case will have lost his interest in them by the time this description of the ceremony comes to his notice.

"Steve" the chief conductor, represented to him yesterday at noon that there was a family of beautiful Mexican girls near the park, dying for love of him. A visit was arranged and Mr. Robinson awaited the coming of night-fall with such nervous impatience that he nearly cut the throat of an old customer of the shop.

About 9 o'clock he arrayed himself in his softest clothes, got a couple of bottles of wine and a lunch. He, Steve and Dan Flowers set out in the direction of the park. Mr. Robinson was glad he had come to Phoenix. He said he believed he would marry and settle down here. He had never enjoyed himself anywhere so much as he had done here within the last four days. "I don't want to go anywhere else," said Mr. Robinson, "Phoenix is a good enough Heaven for me."

Then the firing commenced. Steve who was walking in front, sank down with a groan. For an instant, but the shortest one on record, Mr. Robinson was paralyzed with terror. Dan Flowers fell next and his dying hand clutched at Mr. Robinson's shoulder, that started him. Fred Berry, the chief runner of the Sons of Night, tried to keep him in sight.

Berry says he is the swiftest person he ever saw. Said he: "Looked like a black streak in the road. When he ran about a quarter of the road got to hot for him and he took to the brush. I didn't see him no more, but I heard the break a crackling as he tore through it."

The rest of the flight is described by the motorman of a street car which was standing at the end of the track. The motorman said he never saw Mr. Robinson until he landed in the car with such haste that he nearly threw it off the track. The motorman had heard the shooting and knew that the Sons of Night had increased its membership.

Mr. Robinson gasped and tried to speak. After two or three efforts he asked, "Is this here car going to Phoenix?" The motorman said it was in about ten minutes. "Can't you hurry up the schedule some?" asked Mr. Robinson, as he threw himself flat on a seat and howled. "Per Gawd, zake don't let me any more, I'm murdered!" After the car got started, Mr. Robinson told the motorman that he was in so much of a hurry that he wouldn't have patronized the car line, but he didn't know the way back to town.
